SBP To Control Outfly In Spring

Student Senators voted unanimously Monday night to give the Student Body President sole authority to set the date for spring Outfly next spring.

The recommendation that was approved by the Senators also states that the president should be sensitive to the Student Body, the faculty and the administration in making his decision. There also remains a possibility that the Senate would have to approve the date selected by the prexy if the present spontaneous agreement was abolished completely.

Senators heard a report on the dancing program for next year at the Monday meeting. Ten dances are tentatively scheduled—an all-school sock hop after Fall Outfly; three formal dances at Homecoming, Christmas and the Spring prom and three off-campus dances to be held each semester at Irving School.

Wanted: Informants on Wartburg College.

The summer job of student recruitment is open to all Wartburgers. Catalogs, brochures and other literature about the college can be obtained from the Public Relations office.

Informants should also encourage prospective students to visit the campus. Admissions personnel will be available throughout the summer, according to Admissions Director Fred Thompson.

School Schedules Summer Activity

Summer months will find much activity around the Wartburg campus. Remodeling and repairing older buildings as well as working on new additions will constitute the work.

Definite projects will include work on the new trailor court area, furnishing Clinton Hall, adding parking lots, sidewalks and curbing, and oiling streets.

In addition to two summer school sessions, two important meetings will be held. These will be the Iowa District Convention, convening from June 23-27, and a Church Music Institute from August 24-29.

Thanks For The Memories!

History has long held more than a casual interest for this editor. And as he looks back upon this school year, a sudden realization hits him — a realization that 1957-58 is now merely a matter of history.

But despite the fact that it is now history, all is not gone. For there remains with each student, memories. What memories?

There's an autographed-inscribed Fortress, a stack of carefully preserved Trumpets, a handful of ticket stubs, athletic programs and Artist Series autographs. There's a stack of receipts from the treasurer's office and a pile of Oppie cards.

Nine months of school have gone. Thirty-six weeks and all that's left is a stack of returned tests, droodled notebooks and forgotten term papers.

But more remains than merely these material things. There are the intangible memories which still linger on.

There are the thoughts of Den dates and moonlight walks, of all-nighters and over-slept classes. For this was a year at college.

Whether this was the first, second, third or final term for you, the student, there is a realization that this year has been a good one. Not perfect, but good.

Not sensational, but just a good, solid year. A year which will never again be duplicated. A year which will linger long in the memories of the people who made up Wartburg College for 1957-58.

But facts must be faced — this is the end. Within a few short days the last test will have been written, the final suitcase filled and graduates will be easing into their caps and gowns. The procession will sound and then . . . the end.

But it is not the end. Because, for while students may come and go, Wartburg continues to move along. To go on and to grow on.

For this is Wartburg College. This is the school we call home. This is the "college of our brightest days."

And as one pauses to ponder these things, the words of Tiny Tim seem to penetrate one's thoughts. "God bless each and every one of us."

Yes, God bless each one of us. God bless you all. God bless the Wartburg.

Liberal Arts Education Still Limited To Field

Because Wartburg College is a liberal arts institution, most people, rightly or wrongly, expect that its graduates will know at least something about every general field and a great deal about one specific field.

It is the first clause which makes a liberal arts college different from any other. Every school tries to train its people in their vocations, but only liberal arts colleges claim to educate their students in the general sense of the word.

The administration, in line with the general education idea, has set up certain required courses which are designed to give a broad background of facts and understanding to every student, regardless of his major. That is why, for example, the history majors take art and music, and the music majors take political science.

The theory behind this policy seems to be sound. It is certainly important that every college-educated person should be able to converse intelligently with people outside his own field.

But what happens to this theory in practice? The required courses have come to be regarded as something we have to take with as little effort and as high a grade as possible.

We often hear our own students say, "Oh, I'm not really interested in hagiology, but I do memorize the stuff for tests because a good grade in a four-hour course can really help the grade point."

As a result, we have some tragic examples of ignorance on topics which any bright fifth grade child should handle with ease. For instance, one Wartburg senior was surprised to hear that Longfellow was an American, not an Englishman.

Another did not know the difference between the centigrade and the fahrenheit scales of temperature. These people were quick to excuse themselves for their ignorance because this information was outside of their fields.

Another senior of good academic reputation was not sure whether a comma or a colon belongs after the salutation of a business letter.

The teachers of these required courses are not entirely blameless, either. Hats off to those who enter a classroom where fifty people sit because the catalog requires it and still teach enthusiastically.

But some teachers enter the classroom with an attitude similar to that of the students. "Well, I'm not here for my health, so I may as well decide to endure this course with as little trouble as possible."

What has happened to the genuine desire to learn for the sake of learning? What must be done to motivate students to find out things in other fields besides that of their specialized studies?

It is clear that we need a revival of learning. The student must want to learn things which probably will not help him earn a living if he wants to be really educated.—I.H.

The President Speaks

A MESSAGE FROM DR. C. H. BECKER

It is with mixed feelings that I address a few words of farewell to you, the graduates of the class of 1958. On the one hand, we regret to see you depart. During a period of four years we have become friends and there is always a note of sadness when friends part.

During these years you have made valuable contributions to the life of the college. You have distinguished yourselves in the classroom, the laboratories, in music, dramatics, journalism and athletics. You have helped enrich the whole life of the campus.

You have also made valuable contributions to the religious life and atmosphere of Wartburg College. You have visited the sick in our community; you have been friends of the children at the Children's Home; you have shown a deep concern for missions and for your fellowman in general. Together we have worshipped at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, in chapel and in convocation.

All this is now coming to an end and for that reason commencement awakens a note of sadness.

On the other hand, our hearts are filled with joy and thanksgiving. With you, we are grateful to God that you have been permitted to reach a goal for which you have been striving for many years.

We extend our heartiest congratulations to you! We pray that you may be successful in whatever positions you may be placed. May you be blessed and may you, in turn, become a blessing for many.

You have attended college during some of the most significant years in history. You are leaving college at a time when the greatest need of the day is for Christian leadership. We have confidence that you, members of the class of 1958, are equal to the challenges confronting you.

May our heavenly Father keep you and all of us in His loving care.

After looking through past issues of the Trumpet, I have discovered that final columns from my predecessors have always been long sob stories. As much as I would like to bore you with my mawkish farewell address, I'll limit it to only the first nine-tenths of the column.

While at Wartburg I've compiled a small list of my likes and dislikes in regard to this institution. I have liked: Outfly, the Little Theater, Vollmer House, the Cubs (I'll think of a reason yet), coffee with Dr. Sandberg, KWAR, The Trumpet, Vi's pizza, the Pine Lodge and egg sandwiches at Roy's. Did I mention Joan Pape?

I have disliked: The Fishpond, eight o'clock classes, Bill Chestnut's sound truck, three per cent of my instructors, Oppie Cards, crooked legs on Sir Victor and chemises.

I'm not sure that the alumni association will approve of my contributions I've decided to turn Vollmer House into a home for wayward Greek students.

There is finally a chemise that most opposers to the Sad Sack look might learn to like. Look Magazine a couple weeks ago had some pictures of sacks that show a girl's waistline. Reason? — part of the middle of the dress is translucent.

One faculty member had a cheery outlook in his definition of a chemise. He called it, "A sackful of goodies."

Senior project this year at Wartburg is to buy a glass trophy case for Sir Victor. Senior project at Luther — buy glass cutters for the freshman class.

I've heard two rumors about summer school, only one of which I care to believe. One is that classes start at 7:30 in the morning and the other is that sometimes on Friday the college serves watermelon in front of Luther Hall.

On a nice, sunny day, if there is no wind and you listen carefully, you can hear Bert Wilson turn over in his grave. Now if Miss Wolff writes on my copy, "I don't get it," I'll refer her to the Knight Beat column two weeks ago.

□ □ □

This is something I've been meaning to include for three years and never gotten around to it. You've seen those Los Angeles Rams helmets with the horns painted on the side.

Why doesn't Wartburg paint visors on theirs and make them look like knights' headpieces. OK, so it was a crummy idea. You'll get that way after a couple of semesters too, Claggett.

FOOTNOTES TO FAITH

Writer Warns Against Looking Far Into Future

By Jim Adix

The month of May traditionally brings an air of nostalgia to the campus here at Wartburg and at other colleges and universities throughout the United States.

Graduation and the termination of another school year leave us reminiscing about the past and looking toward the future. Subsequently, our human nature would lead us to forget the really important business at hand — the present.

To be sure, God wants us to think of the future — but only so far as is necessary for now planning our vocations and tasks which will probably be our duty tomorrow. The task of determining our work for tomorrow is today's task, even if its material is "borrowed" from the future.

Adix

C. S. Lewis once said, "God's ideal is a man who, having worked all day for the good of posterity (if that is his vocation), washes his mind of the whole subject, commits the issue to heaven, and returns at once to the patience or gratitude demanded by the moment that is passing over him."

In this fast-moving age of guided missles, earth satellites and nuclear weapons, it obviously is quite easy to be worried by the future — haunted by visions of an imminent heaven or hell upon earth — ready to break God's commands today if by so doing we think we can attain the one or avert the other.

What, then, about our future and the will of God? Certainly most of us have experienced pangs of indecision because of our uncertainty about God's will for us.

We should not try to force God to reveal His plans for us when they are not yet apparent. Compare this to the child who daily observes a flower growing in his parents' garden. He was fascinated by this flower and enjoyed its beauty so much that he decided to stretch the stem so that it would be larger, and therefore more beautiful.

The final results are apparent — he ended up holding the plant in his hand by the roots. God has His own reasons for withholding His complete plan for us. Therefore, we should be patient and trust in Him implicitly, lest our faith be weakened by anxiety.

To you, graduates of 1958, we extend heartiest congratulations and sincere wishes for a happy, successful future. You can be justly proud of your scholastic achievements, and we join with all your friends and neighbors in saluting you.

Castle Singers "Original" Ready For Waverly

By Wilbur Flachman

Musical presentations are nothing new on the Wartburg campus. In the past history of the school, hundreds of recitals, concerts, shows and other presentations were given.

But Sunday evening, something original and completely different is in store for the audience in Knights Gym when the Castle Singers will present their two-act musical "The Legend of Lac Qui Parle" at 8 p.m.

Written by the Singers' versatile director, Dr. E. A. Hovdesven, the musical comes to the Wartburg stage after having played to audiences in four midwestern states.

John Werner, senior with experience in all four college music organizations; Wartburg Choir, Castle Singers, Band and Symphony Orchestra, is director of the show.

The show has already gained nation-wide attention as being one of the few or the only such college production to actually go on tour with a complete musical show. The group went on the road in April, visiting Wisconsin, Minnesota and Illinois as well as playing at several spots in Iowa enroute.

Not only did the entire Singers group of 50 voices make the trip, but there were also a dozen other workers — costume handlers, stagemen, and lightworkers. In addition to the personnel, all of the stage sets, the lighting effects and hundreds of costumes, were crowded into two buses, a station wagon and a 14-foot trailer.

"It was something completely different," stated Dr. Hovdesven, "but the entire group responded wonderfully."

The whole idea started last summer when Dr. Hovdesven was spending the summer in New York City. While he was there, he took in practically every musical that played on Broadway. It was then that he decided he could write just as good a musical as some of those playing there.

Composing was nothing new to Dr. Hovdesven. He has written everything from organ concertos to choral music. But writing it and producing it were two different things. Biggest worry—could the Singers handle a complete musical?

After returning from New York, "Doc" Hovdesven went to work and a few weeks later the finished copy of "The Legend of Lac Qui Parle"—the lake that speaks. Then the Castle Singers took over.

Hundreds of hours of work have been put into the production of "The Legend of Lac Qui Parle" during the past year by ambitious members of Castle Singers.

"There were a lot of headaches getting the show ready," said director Werner. "At times I thought we'd never get anything done. But we did, thanks to wonderful co-operation and teamwork."

The music reflects the spirit of the lake resort. Like all musicals, there is the nameless girl present who comes out to sing her way into the hearts of the audience. Tomorrow night that girl will be Marilyn Ruesch, freshman from Fulda, Minn., who sings "A Wedding is Grand For Me."

Other feature solo numbers include "Love is Such a Flighty Thing" done by Georgia Mikes, sophomore from Fredericksburg and Gretchen Utke, sophomore from Oriska, N. D. Also "'Cast Me a Spell" spotlighting Donna Mueller, sophomore from Chicago, and "I'm a Steady Guy" by Bruce Berquist, freshman from Omaha, Neb. Miss Utke and Richard Brandt, senior, State Center, will team up to feature "Here On The Stillness Of The Waters."

The show was greeted with resounding praise on its midwestern tour. Hours of hard work and long nights of practice are over. All that is left is this year's final presentation of the musical "The Legend of Lac Qui Parle," the show that put themselves on the road — and came home for an encore.

IT'S THE BLUE corn dance and Castle Singers whoop it up during a scene from "The Legend of Lac Qui Parle." Written by Dr. E. A. Hovdesven, the original musical goes on the boards of Knights Gym tomorrow night at 8. Students will be admitted on activity tickets.

"Cry Slaughter" by Dr. Edilberto K. Tiempo, English Department, was one of four books published last year by the Avon Publishing Company to be selected for translation into a foreign language. It is being translated into German for sale in that country.

Dr. Tiempo is currently working on the final draft of a new novel, "More Than Conquerors," which deals with man's victory over torture. The Macmillian Publishing Company has expressed interest in the manuscript.

Faculty Members Travel And Study

Several Wartburg faculty members are making plans for the coming summer that will take them to spots all over the world. Four of them however will be leaving and will not return for next fall.

The Rev. Robert Glaser, Christianity Department, will re-enter the active ministry by serving St. John's Lutheran Church (Buck Creek), Sumner, effective June 1. Dr. Alfred Haefner, Greek Department, has been granted a leave of absence to study at the University of Michigan. He will also teach Grcek part time.

Ryder, Tiempo Leave

Ronald Ryder, Biology Department, will leave to do graduate work at the School of Forestry, Colorado State University. Returning to his former position on the faculty of Silliman University, Dumaguete City, Philippine Islands, is Dr. Edilberto K. Tiempo, English Department.

Those planning summer treks include the Rev. Edwin Schick, who will work in the Princeton Library on his dissertation, and The Rev. Karl Schmidt, who will attend summer school at State University of Iowa. Both men are in the Christianity Department.

Schmidt, Larson to SUI

Warren Schmidt of the Music Department will attend summer school at SUI, as will Robert Larson of the same department. Miss Hazel May Snyder, Home Economics Department, will attend a workshop on food and nutrition at Wisconsin.

A trip to Europe is in store for Miss Erna Moehl, English Department. Thomas Kay, History, will work on his dissertation at the U. of Chicago. Music Department's Dr. E. A. Hovdesven plans a month in New York, then on to Alaska, via Canada.

Miss Mai Hogan, Music Department, will attend Eastman School of Music, Rochester, New York. A week at Texas Lutheran College's Church Workers Institute will claim the attention of John Hiltner, Christianity Department.

Miss Wolff To Wed

Wedding plans are in the air for Miss Margaret Wolff, head of the Journalism Department. She will wed Earl Garland, June 14.

Robert Campbell, Physical Education Department, will attend summer school at SUI and Waldemar Gies, Christianity Department, will spend his summer at Colorado State University. Miss Mary Anders, Music Department, will take in the Robert and Goldfand Piano Workshop at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio.

Most of the remaining faculty members plan on teaching summer school. Some have short vacation trips planned.

Band Invited By Belgium, Holland

Wartburg College Band has been invited to play at the International Exposition in Brussels, Belgium and at the World Music Festival in Kerkrade, Holland this summer, according to Ernest Hagen, director.

Although it will be impossible for the band to attend either engagement because of the lack of time for making travel arrangements, Hagen considers the invitations a great honor for it is the first time that the band has been invited to play in Europe.

The first invitation came by way of the American College Bandmasters Association, and the second invitation offered to pay the band's expenses during a four-day stay in Holland.

Math Awards To 2

Richard Krueger, Waverly, and Eugene Holden, Manly, are winners of mathematics handbooks awarded to outstanding freshman math students. The Chemical Rubber Publishing Company presented the books, "Standard Mathematical Tables."

Summer Drama Scheduled

A summer theater program for Wartburg summer school students and interested Waverly residents has been initiated by Vernon Lestrud, Speech Department.

To begin on June 4 with tryouts for the two-act farce, "The Doctor in Spite of Himself," by Moliere, the program, according to Lestrud, is designed "to promote community interest in Wartburg theater and to provide an outlet for summer school students who are interested in drama.

In conjunction with his summer theater program, Lestrud intends to write and produce some of his own plays. Summer school students and residents of the Waverly area who are interested in participating in this program should contact Lestrud at the Little Theater.

"What will it cost me to wait and buy insurance later?"

Young people getting ready to take on new responsibilities often wonder if they can afford to postpone buying life insurance.

No one can say what the delay might cost if you died, but here's an example of what happens to premiums as you get older . . . based on our most popular policy, the Brotherhood Provider for $10,000:

Age	Premium Annual	Premium Monthly	For each dollar paid in you get back at 65*	Monthly income at age 65* (Male)
20	$156.90	$14.10	$1.74	$77.20
25	180.20	16.20	1.56	70.90
30	209.30	18.80	1.40	64.60
35	245.80	22.10	1.24	57.40

Note that during the ten years from age 25 to age 35, the annual premium increases by $65.60, or 36%. And the amount you get back for each dollar invested decreases by 32¢, or 20%.

Now, the Brotherhood Provider is an outstanding value, no matter when it is purchased. And the net cost is even lower than the premiums suggest, because of Lutheran Brotherhood's substantial dividends.

But these figures do emphasize the advantages of buying insurance as early as possible. Why not start your own insurance program now, before your premiums go up? Give interest a chance to work for you. See your Lutheran Brotherhood representative, or write the home office.

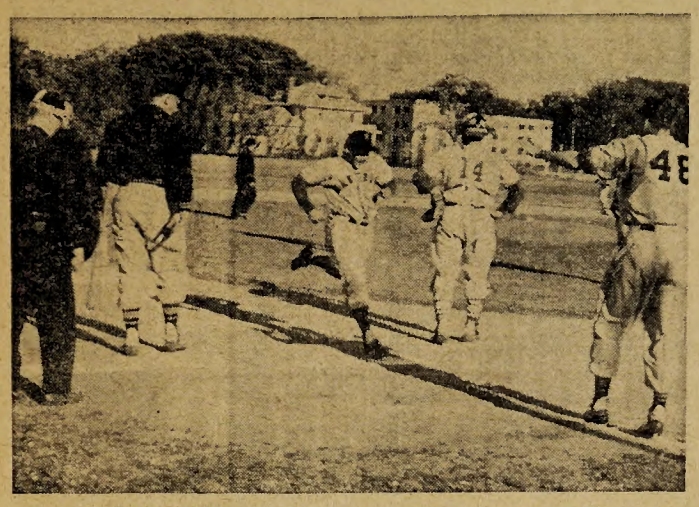
Wind Up With Good Diamond Record

Oppiemen Finish Second; Win Last Two Of Three



ROUNDING HOME on a four-bagger, Knight third-baseman Ralph Wolken scores a run during Wartburg's victory over La Crosse State College Tuesday.

* * * * * * * * *

By Martin Matthias

Finishing one of their most successful seasons in history, the Wartburg diamondeers wound up the season with an overall 11-7 record and a 9-5 second-place conference mark.

In their final action the Knights bowed to Iowa State Teachers College Wednesday 8-4. Winning hurler Fleming, allowed three hits in three innings after replacing Doerzman.

Jaspers Pitches

Fred Jaspers made it his third trip to the hill in three successive days. He left the game in the seventh giving up 11 hits. Dave Siefkes finished with a total of three.

Ware, Panther second baseman, smashed the only extra-base hit for the winners when he tripled in the fourth. Roger Zehr and Darwin Fritz tripled for the Knights.

Knights Beat LaCrosse

Tuesday saw Wartburg squeeze by La Crosse 13-12 in a game that totaled seven homers, six triples and three doubles. Charlie Maahs clouted two homers while Ralph Wolken and Marv Ott each had one. Jaspers took the win to make it his 24th college victory and set a new goal for future Wartburg hurlers.

Don Peth, LaCrosse right-fielder, homered twice and Warczak blasted one to lead their men in the slugfest. Moerschel took the loss as he gave up 13 hits.

Clobber Grinnell

The Knights dumped Grinnell 11-1 in play Monday. Jaspers and Siefkes combined mound duties as Jaspers took the credit. Knight batsmen clobbered 13 hits while Grinnell accounted for six.

Wartburg ended conference play last Saturday with a loss to Buena Vista 6-4. The Beavers nailed 12 hits while the Knights clobbered 10. Ott walked four Beavers and winning pitcher Paige walked three.

Winding up their season Wednesday were seniors Jaspers, Wolken, Craig Wason and Maahs. Coming through this year were several freshmen Marv Ott, Arlyn Saathoff, Dave Siefkes, Terry Exner, Darrol Bauer and Dave Jensen. Roger Zehr, sophomore, along with juniors, Wayne Slack and Darwin Fritz strengthened the Knight hopes for a successful season.

Knights 4th In Net Final

Luther College snared the Iowa Conference singles and doubles titles and waltzed away with the Iowa Conference tennis championship at Dubuque last Saturday.

Wartburg College finished fourth in the seven team scramble but advanced only one man as far as the semi-final round. Senior Stan Vogel crushed Barnes, Central, 6-4, 6-0, in his opening match. Advancing to the semi-finals Vogel extended the match to three sets but was defeated by his three-year nemesis from Luther, Keith Paulson, the loop singles champion.

Senior Earl Himmeger potshotted his way to an early lead in his opening match with Bruggink of Central but lost in three sets, 6-4, 4-6, 4-6. Seniors Les Huth and Jack Warber, the Knight's doubles team, were outstroked 6-4, 6-3 by a veteran Dubuque tandem, Bullard and Parish.

The Knights, under the tutelage of coach Ax Bundgaard, compiled a 2-3 dual meet record this season. Huth, Himmeger, and freshman Dick Jebsen flashed the best singles form in winning three out of their five matches. Vogel and Huth won two out of five contests for the best doubles mark.

SCHROEDER'S SLANTS

By Duane Schroeder

Well, four years of suffering through the ups and downs of Wartburg sports fortunes are coming to an end. Whether this is fortunate or not depends upon which way you look at it.

Health-wise it's a good thing. The ol' ticker can take just so much. But then let's face it. I'll probably miss getting my nose in that stinky old locker-room in the catacombs of Knights Gym.

Twenty years from now I'll probably still be remembering some of the sports thrills I was fortunate enough to experience.

For instance, every-time I eat dill pickles and drink a malt before I go to bed my nightmare will consist of about twenty or thirty last-second shots taken by Upper Iowa's Joe Craig in the final game of the 1956 season. Wartburg had just come from behind to take a 72-71 lead over the Peacocks in the game that would give the Knights a share of the Iowa Conference basketball crown. But as I wake up in a cold sweat, I would realize that those shots all failed to go in.

Everytime I see an out-raged person I will remember how I felt about a week after that game when Moray Eby, conference commissioner, recognized a protest lodged by Parsons, co-holder of the conference crown in '56, against Buena Vista, which eventually took any claim to the championship away from Wartburg.

Of course the height of embarrassment came when the University of Wisconsin lured 6'6" Ray Gross away from Wartburg that year. But this was forgotten in the excitement when Earnest Oppermann charged the Big Ten with "professionalism" by asserting that Wisconsin's Bud Foster had tampered with Gross while here. Oh well, we didn't need him anyway.

Next to seeing the Braves win the World Series last year, one of my biggest thrills came the year I was a freshman. I still can hear noted sports broadcaster Tait Cummins saying that St. Ambrose should have an easy time of it with Wartburg in the first game of the NAIA cage tourney at Coe College, Cedar Rapids, in 1955.

I especially remembered the broadcast when I heard him say later that night, "Well here's a surprise, Wartburg 77, St. Ambrose 68."

And then I'll always see hear coach Ax Bundgaard running his hand through his hair when things aren't going well, or stamping his foot when a ball-player throws a lay-up over the top of the backboard.

And then I'll always see head coach Ax Bundgaard running of such people as Art Margheim, '57 graduate, who broke scoring records all over the place in basketball and gained more than a mile in football, and Bill Bomhoff, also a '57 graduate, who won letters in football, basketball, baseball and track. If he had time he probably would have won them in wrestling, golf and tennis too.

Anyone who ever watched Arnie Brandt, senior, wrestle knew right away that this was a pair of shoes that Johansen would have trouble filling when the heavyweight graduated. Arnie never lost a dual meet match in his entire four years of eligibility.

And finally I'll never forget an incident that happened at Central College a couple of years ago. I happened to be keeping shot-charts for Wartburg, and the Knights were red-hot in the first half, shooting better than fifty per cent.

Oppie was keeping the scorebook and at half-time a disgruntled Central fan asked him what Wartburg was shooting. Oppie asked me in the locker-room and with complete innocence I said some-where around thirty per cent. Oppie returned to the table and told the fan who promptly insinuated he was a bald-faced liar.

At the end of the game I naively came up to Mr. Oppermann and told him the truth. Well, then . . . . . .

Intramural Activity Reaches Climax

Intramural tennis activity nears completion as both men's and women's doubles and women's singles champions have been crowned.

Mary Jo Logan defeated Nancy Mista in the women's singles final, then teamed with her for the women's doubles crown.

Roommates Doug Schuldt and Mel Schlichting defeated three other teams enroute to the men's doubles championship.

In the bridge tournament play-offs, the Rebelein-Michels partnership won out over the Moeller-Chellevold team. The winners will each pocket five dollars of Ray Norheim's budgeted funds.

Track Men Finish Third

By Phil Moeller

The Knight cinder squad, after being shut out in the Friday afternoon finals, snapped back with 33½ points in a close-out Saturday performance, to place third in the conference Meet behind Luther and Dubuque.

Leading the Knight drive with two brilliant, record performances was freshman sprinter Eddie Skay. Victorious in both the 100-yard and 220-yard dashes, Skay became the first Wartburg thinclad to dip below 10 seconds in the open 100-yard dash. In winning the 220-yard dash, Skay equalled his other school record, with a time of :22.2.

Skay

Bose Down, Comes Back

Senior Nelson Bose was superb in his final effort for the Knights. It was heartbreaking to see his valiant effort in the high hurdles thwarted, just two hurdles from his fourth consecutive championship.

After a slow start, he had turned the tables on archrival Wayne Dotzenrod of Luther and was blazing in with just three hurdles to the tape.

A fourth conference high hurdle crown, a new school record, and his first clocking under 15 seconds loomed ahead. Nellie poured it on, but fate said no . . . Bose hit the next hurdle and fell to the track.

Bose Wins Lows

The story had a different ending in the low hurdles. The best hurdler in Knight history, surpassing even his brother Charlie, came back with a dazzling victory for Coach Campbell.

Knight workhorse Bill Streng had another fine afternoon, competing in three running events. In his specialty, Streng pushed Dubuque's McGregor to a conference 440-yard dash record, a time of :49.7. This marks the first time a conference quarter-miler turned the corner under 50 seconds.

Although Bose is one of this year's two graduating seniors, Coach Campbell is eagerly awaiting next year's possibilities.

Senior Musicale Set For Recitals Finale; Will Feature Piano, Organ, Vocal Numbers

Wiedman Plays Chopin

Two works of Chopin — "Mazurka in D Flat Major, Op. 30, No. 3" and "Etude in C Minor, Op. 25, No. 7" — will be presented by Darrell Wiedman, pianist. He will be followed by a duet, to be sung by Sharon Jacobsen, mezzo-soprano, and Anne von Fischer, contralto. Their number will be "Sound the Trumpet" by Purcell.

Patricia Jacob, organist, will then play "Carillon" by Vierne. She will be followed by Miss von Fischer who will sing "Love Triumphant" by Brahms. "Beauty Is Not Caused" by Dougherty will be rendered by Miss Jacobsen.

More Chopin Favored

Miss Deines will return as a pianist to play "Nocturne in C Minor, Op. 48, No. 1" by Chopin and "Traum eines Wachenden" a number of her own composition. Debussy will dominate Ruth Weidler's portion of the program, as the pianist will play "Evening in Granada" and "What the West Wind Saw."

To conclude the program, a mixed quartet will sing "In a Persian Garden (A Song Cycle for Four Solo Voices)" by Lehman. Members of the quartet include Sharon Folkerts, soprano; Grayce Pumfrey, contralto; Ronald Mastin, Tenor and David Linkey, bass. Miss Pumfrey is a sophomore.
